12 INNING BATTLE

again distinguishing himself by a pretty throw home. Witt was first up for the locals and as he apparently didn't want to dally around the bases he connected at once for one of his famous clouts. The speedy third sacker was well on his way to second before some of the fans realized that he had hit it. It was a pretty bingle and Vaughn had a long chase to retrieve it. The clout was good for three sacks, but Witt would be satisfied with not less than four. In this he outguessed the fielders, who, acting on theory that he would stop at the third station, were slow in returning the ball, and the throw home arrived too late to shut off the home run. After things quieted down the locals went ahead with their inning. Sullivan and Shea were easy outs, but Connor singled to center and then came home on Keefe's double to left. Tommy Davidson took three, but left his team one to the good.

All quiet in the eighth and St. Johnsbury stock above par, and it should have remained so but for the gift to Greenough. He was the first up and the locals seemed to vie with each other in helping him around the circuit. In the first place Shea fumbled a grounder, giving the visitor a life. Hoernle contributed a wild heave which gave him second and then Davidson uncorked a wild pitch on which the lone base runner reached the third station. McManus then came up and smashed a single into left, scoring Greenough and spoiling the locals chance of giving him an entire free trip. Way sacrificed McManus along but Campbell and Early were easy outs.

The locals were unable to break the tie in their last half and what had been a battle now resolved itself into a siege, and the observers settled back into their seats determined to see it out, supper or no supper.

Tommy, who showed a little weariness in the ninth took on new life for the extra innings, while the big Eli man was perceptibly weakening. Neither side was able to change the score in the tenth, and again in the eleventh both were retired in order, with Way stalling at every chance.

Way opened the twelfth by grounding out. Campbell got a life on Shea's second misplay and reached Eli man on a wild pitch. Early and McGuinness were easy outs, leaving Campbell stranded. Shea singled to left, was forced by Connor, who in turn was given the same dose by Keefe. Tommy advanced the alternate twirler with a single to right. The stage was then set for Manager McGuinness to win the game with two out and two strikes on him, but "Pie" interfered. The next ball was a moist one, but it broke bad for the twirler passing the batter about three feet behind his back and allowing Keefe to walk home with the deciding score. The big Yale twirler watched the course of the erratic spitter, with rueful look, then regained his usual calm, smiled broadly at this prank of fate and started for the bench.

"Some game," expresses it as well as anything could.

Four to Three in Ten Innings.

Not satisfied with the outcome of Saturday's game the Fabyans came back yesterday and were handed the same medicine, although it took 10 innings instead of 12 to turn the trick this time. At the end of regular play the score was tied, but Sullivan broke this up in the 10th when his clout brought Hoernle home with the winning run. Walsh and Danny Keefe were the opposing pitchers and the local lad had the better of the argument all the way. "Lefty" Gallagher, Sullivan and Shea were the heavy hitters for the locals, while Capt. Vaughn clouted the ball for the visitors. McGuinness played a great game in left field and cut off what looked like a home run by Sullivan. The visitor went up against the fence for the ball.
